

concerning to any Swiss to whom you happen to be talking, for he knows so many lan-guages that you are sure to hit one of them, and so you convey ideas to him that you had no thought of expressing. October weather is lovely in Switzerland.

Most of the visitors have then gone, prices omedown one-half, and the air is sweet and cool, with asually a cloudless sky.

Under these circumstances I thought it would be a nice thing, as the roads were good and the scenery picturesque, to take a bicycle tour right around Lake Thun, be-ginning at the town which gives the lake its name, going around the north side of the lake to Interlaken, and returning by the south shore.

the south shore.

The hotel ke-per told me that if I went up the arcest furned to the right, went under an arcade until I came to a tunnel, penetratest that and energed on another street, turned to the left and kept on, I would come to the shap of a man who would let me have a bicycle on hire by the day or by the hour. I followed the directions as closely as possible, and thought I recognized the shop because a bicycles was leaning against the wall. The owner was leaning against the doorway, looking at the bicycle outside. The following conversation in many languages took place between us:

"Haben sie un bicyclette a loner?" I openkl out on him with the above impartial mixhure of therman and French. It seems he understood the to ask if that was his bicycle, whereupon he repited in four languages:

Yaw, yaw, oui, yes, se." Then, throwing in a bit of Italian, I led t with:

Now I submit that to any educated person or even to a university man, this sentence said as plainty as print: "How much do you want for this machine by the hour or the day." I tried afterward to get the magistrate to see this, but he, not knowing Italian, shied at the very beginning of the phrase. The owner of the bicycle on oath phrase. The owner of the officer of call feelings that he thought I asked how nuch the bleycle had cost him. He says that he answered he paid 500f for that brute of a machine, made in France, while I understood him to agree to let me have t for 5f. a day, which was cheap. I was n a harry to beoff, and was afraid he might ent his offer, so I said it was all right and I would take it, whereupon, without further parley, I wheeled the bicycle into the middle of the road, sprang on its back, and was off, leaving the astonished man standing by his door, too thunderstruck. t seems, to make any outery until I had sed beyond his sight at the first turning of the road.

I pedalled serenely on, little realzing what a commotion I had left behind me, and one funny thing about this most regretable episode is that I spent an ex-ceedingly quiet, peaceful, and enjoyable day, not knowing I was pursued, making no attempt to clude anybody, and yet slading them in what appeared afterward to be by subtle and crafty dodges. The magistrate could not be persuaded that my sitting on the veranda of a restaurant in the Binin street of Interlaken, with the bicycle in plain view of everybody, was not the brazen act of a hardened criminal, who knew the police would be searching for him in the tack streets.

When the man standing against the doorwhen the man standing against the door way had recovered partly from his amaze-ment at my sudden flight on his machine, he rushed to the police station and told the authorities there a plausible foreigner had engaged him in polite Ollendorfian conversation, and, while his mind was distracted in trying to follow his mind was instructed in trying to follow his remarks, had seized the apportunity and also the machine and was at that moment making his way to the north road towards Interlaken. Now, capture under these circumstances seemed to be deliciously easy. There were no branching off roads. The mountains were on one side and the lake on the other, on neither side of which was bicycling practicable. Therefore all the two policemen had to do, when they mounted their machines, was to ride faster than I did, and so over take me. As I had no idea that a race was on, I planged along in a leasurely manner and would undoubtedly have been taken pear Interlaken if it had not been for the near Intertaken if it had not been for the fact that some years ago a company bailt is funicular railway from the margin of the lake, a mile or so up to St. Beatenburg. I had fived in St. Beatenburg once, and I remembered that the rond from there to Interlaken was a good one, so I thought that perhaps it would not be a bad plan to go up on the railway and coast dowfi to Interlaken. I knew a man who had done it once. I can well believe now that no one ever tries it the second time.

The car rease on to St. Beatenburg these well believe now that no one ever tries it the second time.

The car goes up to 8t. Beatenburg three or four times a day only, but when a couple of miles away from the landing I saw a steamer coming in and I knew if I reached the landing about the time she did I would get a car. I am not a racer, but I thereupon put in my best licks to make connection with the mountain railway. The road at this point is as level as the connection with the mountain railway. The road at this point is as level as the lake itself and only a few feet above it. My thoughts turned to the railway because I knew that beyond the lower end of it the rarriage road rose high above the lake, passed through several tunnels and then went down to the Interlaken plain. By taking the op car I would avoid all this and have it down hall all the way.

The policemen, it seems, caught sight of me as I was making my spurt, and they at since put on extra steam, but there is a fleep buy just before one reaches the funcular, and they lost sight of me as I neep bay just before the reaches the fun-cular, and they lost sight of me as I turned the point. I had reached the top of the railway funcicular and I bicycled the mile or more along the street, high up above the lake, on one side of which is peattered the village of St. Beatenburg, with its wonderful view of the snow moun-lains, the longeron the First March.

hains—the Jungfrau, the Eiger, the Monch and a host of others.

I found the ride down the zigzag road not such fun as I had expected. I saw the brake was not going to last if I kept on, to I had to walk most of the way down. I found the ride down the zigzag road not such fun as I had expected. I saw the brake was not going to last if I kept on, so I had to walk most of the way down. Coming to a more level ground I cycled tently into Interlaken, making for the place where they sell Munich beer, and here, over a mug and a sandwich, on the main street, I made my frugal lunch, with the bicycle standing against a pillar if the veranda.

After a smoke I proceeded out of Interlaken, and took the south road that borders the lake. This road is not so good for cycling as the other, being much more lilly, while the roadbed is nore stony. I therefore walked a good deal, taking in the formed of the formed of the formed of the phonograph store. "Those are talking machines,' answered a man in the doorway."

Mistakenin a Thief.

(By Luke Sharp.)

A certain news agency has telegraphed abroad the report that I am in 8 witzerland, not for the benefit of my health, but for the purpose of stealing bicycles, and they added that I was an expert thief, and, for a time, at least, I had succeeded in baffling the most praiseworthy attempts of the police of two towns to capture me.

While this statement is naturally flattering to me. It is, nevertheless, a libel, and, in fact, if I cared to use strong language, I might go so far as to lake the last sylvable away from the word "libel."

My Financial Career.

When I go into a bank I get rattled. The clerks rattle me; the wickets rattle me; the sight of the money rattles me. The moment i cross the threshold of a bank I ama hesita-ting jay. If I attempt to transact business there I become an irresponsible idiot. I knew this beforehand, but my salary had been raised $50 a month, and I felt that the bank was the only place for it. So I shambled in and looked timidly around at the clerks. I had an idea that a person about to open an account must need consult the manager. I wentto a wicket marked "Accountant." The accountant was a tall, cooldevil. The very sight of him rattled me. My voice was sep-

"Can I see the manager?" I said, and added solemnly, "alone." I don't know why I said solemnly, "alone." I don't know why I said "alone."

"Certainly," said the accountant, and fetched limi. The manager was a grave, calm man. I held my $50 clutched in a crumpled ball in my pocket.
"Are you the manager?" I said. God knows, I didn't doubt it. "Yes," he said. "Can I see you." I asked, "alone?" I didn't want to say "alone" again, but without it the thing seemed self-evident. The manager looked at me in some alarm. He felt that I had an awful secret to reveal.
"Come in here," he said, and led the way to a private room. He turned the key in the lock.

to a process the lock, "We are safe from interruption here," "We are said, "Sit down." We both sat down and looked at one another. I found no voice to speak.

"You are one of Pinkerton's men, I pre-sume." he said. He had gathered from my mysterious manner that I was a detective. I knew what he was thinking, and it made "No. not from Pinkerton's." I said, seem agency. "To tell the truth," I said, seemingly to imply that I came from a rival agency. "To tell the truth," I went on, as if I had been prompted to lie about it, "I'm not a detective at all. I've come to open an account. I intend to keep all my money in this bank." The namager looked relieved, but still serious, he concluded now that I was a son of barron Extracted.

"A large account, I suppose," he said.
"Fairly large," I whispered. "I propose to deposit $56 now and $50 a month regularly."

The manager got up and opened the door.

He called to the accountant.

"Mr. Montgomery," he said, unkindly.

"this gentleman is opening an account; he will deposit $56. Good morning." I rose.

A big iron door stood open at the side of the room.

"Good morning," I said, and stepped into the safe.

the safe.

"Come out," said the manager coldly, and showed me the other way. I went up to the accountant's wicket and poked the ball of money at him with a quick, conclusive movement, as if I were doing a conjuring trick. My face was ghastly pale.

"Here," I said, "deposit it." The tone of the words seemed to mean, "Let us do this named the fit is on us."

of the words seemed to mean, "Let us do this painful thing while the fit is on us."
He took the money and gave it to another cierk. He made me write the sum on a slip of paper and sign my name in the book. I no longer knew what I was doing. The bank swam before my eyes.

"Is it deposited?" I asked in a hollow,

"Is it deposited?" I asked in a hollow, vibrating voice;
"It is," said the accountant.
"Then I want to draw a check."
My idea was to draw out $6 of it for present use. Some one gave me a check book through a wicket and some one else began telling me how to write it out. The people in the bank had the impression that I was an invalid millionaire. I wrote something on the check and thrust it in at the check. He looked at it.

what? Are you drawing it all out again? he asked in surprise. Then I realized that I had written fifty six instead of six. I was foo far gone to reason now. I had a feeling that it was impossible to explain the thing. plain the thing. All the cierks had stopped writing to look at me. Reckless with mis-ery. I made a plunge. "Yes, the whole thing."
"You withdraw your money from the

"You withdraw your money from the bank?"

"Every cent of it."

"Are you not going to deposit any more?" asked the clerk, astonished.

"Never." An idiotic hope struck noe that they might think something had insulted me while I was writing the check, and that I had changed my mind. I made a wretched attempt to look like a man with a fearfully quick temper. The clerk prepared to pay the money.

"How will you have it?"

"What?"

"How will you have it?"

"Oh!" I caught his meaning and answered, without even trying to think, "In fifties." He gave me a $50 bill.

"And the six?" he asked, dryly.

"In sixes," I said. He gave it to me, and I rushed out. As the big doors swung behind me I caught the echo of a roar of laughter that went up to the celling of the bank. Since then I bank no more. I keep my money in cash in my trousers pocket and my sayings in silver dollars in a sock.
